

NUCLEAR TOMORROW

Nuclear waistline is a habit-forming thought
Strolling down the Cote d'Azur
Cancelling our hope of survival
Reserving a first-class seat to complete enlightenment.
Philadelphia is running behind my graffiti.
Last year two cows a chicken and a pig died,
And still Allen Ginsberg is protesting.
How much radiation does it take
Before we decide to leave?
Honest to goodness, truly, actually, particularly,
It seems that we are about to melt down.
When I lay me down to sleep,
If I should die before I wake
I dream, and dream, and dream.
If this is my trip
Then W. C. Fields was right.
